

JURY DOESN'T ACT ON SLOT MACHINES

NO AFFIDAVITS ON FILE, JURY IN DISCUSSION

Nine Merchants Testify But Evidence Not Sufficient for Formal Action

CONTROVERSY QUIET

Sheriff Awaits Action of Machine Owners

No action was taken by members of the Pickaway-co. April grand jury on slot machines because evidence produced was not sufficient to warrant either indictments or acquittals of persons operating them. The grand jurors therefore returned no finding either for or against the machines.

Nine merchants of this city testified before the jurors concerning the machines. The evidence produced by these witnesses placed before the jurors was not enough upon which to take action.

So, the slot machine question remains as it is, and was, before the jurors convened. No affidavit against any merchant has been filed in any court by Sheriff Charles Radcliff. He is holding a number of confiscated machines in the county jail, and says that the only action must be forthcoming from owners of the machines. He will positively not file an affidavit, Mr. Radcliff states, because he has removed the machines as he set out to do.

Although nothing official has been reported, it is expected, and predicted, that the owners of the machines will commence a replevin suit in county common-pleas court for the return of the machines which Radcliff now holds.

Eight True Bills Are Found by Jury

Eight true bills were returned by the grand jury and one bill was ignored in a report filed in the county clerk's office Friday morning.

True bills were returned against: Beman Sharkey, for failure to provide for legitimate children;

William Gaines, for burglarizing the filling station, in Jackson-twp, owned by Donald Watt;

Jesse Eby, for burglarizing the filling station in Jackson-twp, owned by Donald Watt;

Jesse Dawson, for non-support;

Irvin Trimmer, for breaking and entering the filling station of Helvering and Scharenberg, E. Main-st;

James Hamilton, for non-support;

Charles Harris, for stealing chickens from Omer Selmer;

G. M. Hairston, for uttering and publishing a forged check.

Twenty-nine witnesses testified before the jurors who were in session from Thursday, at 9 a. m., until shortly before 11 a. m., Friday.

J. Marion Trimble was foreman of the jury.

It is expected prisoners will be arraigned before Judge Joseph W. Adkins next Monday provided Mr. Adkins is not called to Ironton in a court trial there.

MAYOR REQUESTS OBSERVANCE OF MOTHER'S DAY

"Whereas, Sunday, May tenth, has by common consent been designated as Mothers' Day, I, B. T. Hedges, as Mayor of Circleville, would urge upon all our citizens a becoming observance of this day. I would urge our youth to show by some act of devotion their love to their mothers while living, and would also urge that we, who have grown older, whose mothers live in memory, by some testimony, if only a white flower, manifest that we still cherish in our hearts her love and sacrifice."

NAMED GUARDIAN

Ollie Harral, Pickaway-twp, has been named guardian of Nancy Harral, 18, and Edgar Harral, 15, by Judge E. A. Brown.

Young Scientist Is Found Alive

COPENHAGEN, May 8.—The dramatic story of Augustine Courtauld's lonely vigil throughout the winter on the Greenland ice cap remained locked in the Arctic wilderness today as the young scientist, alive and well, trekked over the snow toward Angmagssalik with the sledge party that rescued him.

Courtauld, son of a millionaire British manufacturer, was found by a sledge party under H. G. Watkins, leader of the British Arctic air route expedition, in or near the little hut where he had been marooned since last December.

FLIER BROADCASTS News of his rescue was broadcast to the world by Captain Albin Ahrenberg, noted Swedish flier, who journeyed to Greenland from Sweden by plane to aid in snatching the young meteorologist from what appeared for a while to be almost certain death.

Taking off from the base camp of the Watkins expedition near Angmagssalik, Ahrenberg flew northward to the ice cap where Courtauld went into voluntary exile and isolation to spend the winter testing air currents and velocity on behalf of the expedition, whose object was to determine the feasibility of a regular air route across the Arctic circle.

Flying as low as safety would permit, Ahrenberg reconnoitered over the 7,500 foot high ice cap and at a spot 124 miles inland he sighted Courtauld's hut.

The Swedish airman then descended rapidly, and scrutinized the shack and the surrounding territory carefully. The missing man, for whom airmen and explorers of three nations had been searching for weeks, was nowhere to be seen.

After ascertaining that Courtauld had not wandered away from his hut in search of food or aid and fallen victim to the rigors of the Arctic, Captain Ahrenberg reluctantly turned back to Angmagssalik, prepared to report his failure.

FOUND IN PARTY He headed back over the route taken by the dog sled party under Watkins, for part of his task was to drop food and supplies to the rescuers.

Ahrenberg sighted the sledge party a few miles from the site of Courtauld's hut. He saw four men in the party, and knowing Watkins had left Angmagssalik with only two aides, the airman immediately realized his search was at an end.

He flew low over the party, and by means of pre-arranged signals ascertained that Courtauld was among the number, apparently in good enough health to trudge along behind the dog-sled. Ahrenberg dropped sufficient food supplies to enable the party to reach Angmagssalik in safety, and then advised the base camp by radio of the success of the Watkins expedition.

Ahrenberg is due back at the base camp some time today. Under present conditions, it will take Courtauld a week to reach the camp, and there appeared to be some likelihood planes might be sent out to expedite the return. The point where Courtauld was seen by Ahrenberg indicated Watkins had reached and rescued the marooned scientist only a few hours before the flier had located the hut by air.

CONVICT ESCAPES

Sheriff's Office Hunting Armed Man in Woods on Westfall Road Today.

An escaped prisoner from the U. S. Reformatory at Camp Sherman, was thought surrounded in brush on the Westfall road, west of this city, Friday afternoon by deputies of the office of Sheriff Arganbright and a crowd of other persons. The man is reported to have made his escape from the reformatory early Friday when he slipped a guard took his revolver, stole an automobile and headed in this direction.

The car, a Chrysler, was found abandoned near a wooded section near the location where the Pennsylvania railroad and the Chesapeake & Ohio roads cross in Wayne-twp.

The man reported to be 5 feet 6 inches tall, wearing khaki trousers and a grey sweater. He is carrying a .38 caliber Smith and Wesson revolver with four bullets in it, according to the report.

The Reformatory, following usual custom, refused to divulge any information concerning the name of the prisoner or the name of the man reported slugged. The escaped convict had been a trusty for several months it is said.

ASSESSORS OF TAX TO MEET

Auditors Calls Session at Court House Next Wednesday; Plan Re-appraisal.

Pickaway-co tax assessors will be called into the county auditor's office probably Wednesday, May 13 to begin their check of residents, who filed personal tax returns last year and failed to do so this year, according to Cliff White, county auditor.

Each assessor will check over the residents in his respective ward or township who filed application last year, and if he has not listed property this year, the assessor will file a return, minus the $100 exemption which is allowed the applicant under the law, if the report was filed before May 1.

To date there have been 5,055 tax blanks filed in the auditor's office, which discloses that there are about 450 or more blanks still out, according to records of last year.

At the present time plans are being arranged for the re-appraisal of property in the county. It is not expected the work will get underway before the last of May. Although plans have not been completed, it is expected that there will be five appraisers named in Circleville, and one from each township in the county. They will probably be paid a flat rate, and not according to any scale.

Re-appraisal of property takes place every six years.

FAMOUS PHYSICIST ILL

Dr. Albert A. Michelson, famous physicist, who has been ill at his home in Pasadena, Cal., is growing gradually weaker and attending physicians expressed a fear he may not recover. Dr. Michelson, who is 79 years old, was the first physicist in this country to win the Noble prize for scientific achievement.

GAME IS UP FOR KILLERS

By James L. Kilgallen NEW YORK, May 8.—The game's up for "Two Gun" Crowley.

"Two Gun" Crowley, the 29-year-old hoodlum who was so "hard" he thought his first name, Francis, was "Sissy."

And for his 16-year-old sweetie, Helen Walsh.

And for his bull-necked, barrel-chested pal, Rudolph "Tough Red" Durninger.

Death in the electric chair loomed today as the almost certain fate of both Crowley, the "cop killer," and Durninger, the slayer of a "Ten-Cents A-Dance" girl.

The three, seized in one of the most spectacular man hunts in New York in years, were a beaten, cowering trio today. Crowley was in the prison ward at Bellevue hospital, wounded four times, although not in a serious condition; "Tough Red" was in a cell. Helen too, was locked up. The game was up.

Legal machinery was set into motion to bring about swift punishment for their crimes.

Crowley, captured with his pal, Helen, and his pal Durninger in an apartment building after they had shot it out for an hour with 150 policemen armed with machine guns, pistols, tear bombs and axes, spent the night in the hospital closely guarded by detectives. His wounds were superficial—three in the legs and one in the left arm.

He'll probably live and, now when the accident occurred.

4 PUPILS ARE KILLED AND 5 MORE MAY DIE

Doctors Fighting to Save School Kiddies, Hurt in Train, Bus Smash

DRIVER IS BLAMED

Witness Says He Drove Through Signal

MERCER, Calif., May 8.—While four lay dead, doctors today fought to save the lives of other children and of a bus driver, who were critically injured when the school bus in which they were riding late yesterday was struck by a Santa Fe freight train.

Five other children may die, doctors said. Fifteen suffered broken limbs. There were 40 in the bus at the time of the accident.

WENT THROUGH SIGNAL

J. H. Kregger, driver of the bus, allegedly drove through a wigwag signal. With a crash that was heard for blocks, the train over-turned the bus and dragged it 50 feet down the track.

Four separate investigations into the accident, one of the worst in the history of the state, were underway today.

The bus was transporting pupils from the John C. Fremont school to their homes.

W. E. Vickland, who was driving behind the bus, told police the wigwag signal was operating and the train was in full view when the school vehicle went on the tracks. He said the bus slowed down but did not completely stop.

COULD HEAR SCREAMS

"We could hear the screams of the children and the shriek of the brakes as the engineer tried to stop the train," Vickland said. "At least two of the children were thrown through the windows of the bus and fell directly under the wheels of the train."

The dead: Dolores Epsen, 9.

Billy Epsen, 7, her brother.

Jeanette Ahr, 8.

Robert Fuller, 8.

All except the Epsen boy were instantly killed.

The seriously injured: Helen Fogelman, 9.

Marshall Pritel, 7.

Muriel Keller, 8.

Kregger, the driver.

Shirley Keller.

Jean Oaks.

Before lapsing into unconsciousness, Kregger mumbled something "about brakes that wouldn't hold."

Members of the train crew and other witnesses declared the train was not moving at more than eight miles an hour when the collision occurred.

The grade crossing where the accident occurred is about four blocks from the school.

DENY RETRIAL FOR BROTHERS

Judge Says Convicted Slayer of Jake Lingle Must Go To Penitentiary.

CHICAGO, May 8.—Leo V. Brothers, St. Louis slugging today was denied a new trial on the charge that he murdered Alfred ("Jake") Lingle, reporter, last June 9.

His motion for a new trial was denied by Judge Joseph Sabath before whom Brothers was found guilty recently and sentenced to serve 14 years at Joliet penitentiary.

Judge Sabath, however, granted Brothers' attorneys a 60-day stay, and the privilege of filing a bill of exceptions. His attorneys said they will take the case to the supreme court immediately.

Judge Sabath overruled the motion on the ground that he found nothing in the evidence to warrant setting aside the jury's verdict.

Brothers displayed not the slightest emotion when the judge made his ruling. Clad immaculately as ever, he maintained the same cold and rather sullen expression that characterized his attitude during his lengthy trial which attracted nation-wide attention.

H. RENICK IS SUICIDE

Coroner C. E. Bowers was investigation a report that Harry Renick, well known Jackson-twp land-owner, had committed suicide at his residence in Jackson-twp late this afternoon by hanging.

JURORS FAVOR PETTIBONE IN THEIR FINDING

Return $4,500 Verdict Against John J. McKinnon of Columbus in Court Here

Osmer Pettibone of South Bloomfield was granted a judgment of $4,500 by a jury in common pleas court late Thursday from John J. McKinnon, of Columbus, on Pettibone's suit for $15,000 damages. It was intimated that the finding will be appealed.

Pettibone sued McKinnon after he was allegedly struck by McKinnon's car north of South Bloomfield on March 19, 1929. He claimed permanent injury. McKinnon's defense was that Pettibone was intoxicated and was staggering across the road when hit.

The plaintiff was represented by Barton Walters and C. A. Welch and the defendant by Charles E. May, this city and Ralph Klapp of the firm of Williams, Sink and Williams of Columbus.

E. O. Adkins was foreman of the jury which was composed of Nelson Bell, Allie Schleich, Robert Colville, Sam Wolford, Mike Decker, Mrs. Christina Hill, Frank Stout, Mrs. Mabel Hitler, Mrs. Louise Stump, Clay Hitler and Mrs. Alice Bowsher. The jury received the case at 4:15 p. m. and returned its finding at 8:30 p. m. Two of the jurors refused to sign the finding while the other 10 concurred.

ASKS FORECLOSURE

T. P. Brown, through his attorney, I. F. Snyder, filed suit in common pleas court Friday for foreclosure of a mortgage and personal judgment against Loren Ater and Mary Ater, now Mary Fleck. The plaintiff's suit is based on a $1,000 note.

HEETER DIVORCE

Ellen M. Heeter filed petition for divorce from George W. Heeter, both of this city, in common pleas court Friday, charging gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty.

The plaintiff is represented by Adkins & Adkins.

EASTER IS HELD

Clarence Easter is being held in the county jail following the filing of a non-support affidavit in Squire E. C. Fnee's court. He was arrested Thursday evening by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Bob Armstrong.

GIANT LINER IS AGROUND

NEW YORK, May 8.—The giant Curad liner Berengaria, third largest vessel in the world, ran hard and fast aground in the fog today opposite Seagate, Brooklyn, while raising up Ambrose channel through the fog.

The liner carried 478 passengers and a crew of 900 men.

She is in no danger, officials made clear, though shipping experts voiced fear that it may take several days to pull her off the mud bank.

A fleet of tugs was hurried to the scene.

If the tugs and the next high tide are unable to move her, the passengers will be removed to other craft and ferried ashore, it was said.

The Berengaria grounded near buoy 15 abreast of West Bank light, at a point where the channel is 2,000 feet wide.

WILL OBSERVE HOSPITAL DAY HERE, MAY 12

Mothers of Children Born At Institution are Especially Invited

HOLD OPEN HOUSE

More Than 2,500 Hospitals Observe the Event

Berger hospital, according to the superintendent, Miss Anna Robertson, will observe National Hospital Day and Tuesday, May 12, from 2 to 4 p. m. special invitation has been extended to mothers of children born at the local institution.

National Hospital Day has come to mean a great deal to the hospitals through the country. Each year sees an increasing number preparing programs for observance of the day, to bring to their institutions new friends and new interests. People who only casually think of the hospital at other times during the year should visit our hospital, become familiar with its operation and to become interested in its support.

WORK IS EXCELLENT

As this is being written there are 720,000 men, women and children in hospitals, and 700,000 full-time hospital workers caring for them, not including more than 97,000 staff physicians or approximately 70,000 of the nurses and influential men and women in the country who serve as trustees or advisors.

Over 10,000 hospitals have served by hospitals, and 10,000 lives saved by hospitals.

National Hospital Day is served to focus public attention on the service and problems of hospitals.

The American National Hospital Association directs observance of National Hospital Day every May 12. The date is the anniversary of the birth of Florence Nightingale, who was so important in stimulating improvement in hospital administration as she was in advancing nursing service.

Every president of the nation has endorsed Hospital Day since it first was observed in 1921. Each year sees more hospitals joining the movement, with about 2,500 holding programs in 1930. Governors, church leaders and others have endorsed the movement.

LIST OF BABIES

BULKLEY ASKS WET PLATFORM

CLEVELAND, O., May 8.—Democrats today were convinced of the stand United States Senator Robert J. Bulkley, of Ohio, will take on the prohibition question in the 1932 presidential election.

Speaking before 1,000 guests at the annual Jefferson Day banquet here last night, Bulkley pleaded for the inclusion of a wet plank in the 1932 Democratic platform.

He declared it should be the duty of the Democratic party to offer the best solution possible for the prohibition question.

"If we want to keep prohibition out of political campaigns, I know of no better way than to go to the people with a platform pledging the party to submit an amendment to be voted upon at constitutional conventions of the states," Bulkley said.

"CONTEST OF AGES" IS NOW COMPLETED

The Contest of Ages that has been in progress in Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood for the past several months, came to a fitting close Thursday evening with a banquet and an excellent after dinner entertainment.

At the beginning of the contest the membership was divided into five classes; those between the ages of 20 and 30 years being directed by Charles Walters and Gladden Troutman; the 30-40 group by Fulton Cryder and C. C. Schwarz; the 40-50 group by George C. Griffith and E. C. Ebert; the 50-60 group by E. E. Wolf and J. D. Hummel and the 60-70 group by J. R. Noecker and Rev. G. J. Troutman, D. D.

The rules governing the contest were that all persons performing on the programs should be members of the Brotherhood; each program limited to one hour and fifteen minutes; judging to be based upon information, entertainment, presentation, uniqueness and effectiveness; no one feature to be credited with more than 20 per cent.

The team meriting the lowest and the next lowest grade to furnish the banquet at the end of the contest and the team meriting third lowest and fourth lowest grade to provide the after dinner entertainment.

The judging was done by S. T. Rife, history instructor of the city schools; J. W. Fetherlin, dramatic director city schools; E. L. Daley, supervisor of grades, city schools; Ferd Fickens, clerk of courts and George McDowell, superintendent of Jackson-twp Centralized schools.

An unusual amount of interest was created in this contest and possibly has been the best series of entertainments ever produced by this organization.

The executive committee deserves especial credit for the excellent idea and for the plans used in carrying out the idea of the contest.

The menu for the banquet consisted of chicken, mashed potatoes, gravy, pea patties, bread, butter, spring onions, cold salad, cake, ice cream and coffee. C. W. Helvering was general chairman of the groups furnishing the banquet.

J. D. Hummel representing the groups furnishing the entertainment, was master of ceremonies.

Rev. G. L. Troutman was introduced as the "first performer" on the program and presented a series of lantern slides devised by himself, depicting a "Parody on the Program of the Winning Team." These pictures presented the 60-70 group as a whole, then each performer individually as seen by the losing teams. This number was replete with much good humor and was well received.

Charles Walters talked interestingly and at length on the "High Spots" of the contest, giving his ideas of the strong points of each program.

William G. Kock was the next speaker and gave a resume of the "Farm Conditions from 1861 to the present time, ending his instructive talk by telling of the possible locating of the Mid-West Farm Equipment Company, of Battle Creek, Mich., in Circleville.

Mr. Kock now represents this concern in the eight adjoining counties.

Wayne Hoover was next introduced as the "Mayor of Fox P. O." and rendered his little skit, "Humph, Maybe You Don't Know" in his usual characteristic manner and delighted the audience.

One of the hardest losers of the contest came next on the program; E. E. Wolf chose as his subject "Fallibility" and did he show up the weak points of the performers on the winning team and the judges? Just ask any one who had the privilege of listening in.

The music was under the direction of Gladden Troutman and consisted of several interspersing numbers by the entire audience; and mandolin and banjo duet of himself and Theodore Koch and a musical novelty number by himself and Clydus Young. The latter number was a knock out and again showed Mr. Troutman's ability as an entertainer.

The piano accompaniment for all musical numbers was played by Mrs. Floyd Weller.

The last speaker was E. Sensenbrenner, choosing his theme "Belly Ache." Mr. Sensenbrenner was at his best and as he progressed with his talk caused ripples of laughter to develop into outbursts of good cheer, developing into thunderous applause.

Everybody taking part in the contest was in for his share of censure at the hands of this last speaker.

So ended what will likely be remembered in Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood one of the best contests ever staged by them in the over twenty years of its history.

On the third Thursday evening of June, the judges who have so willingly given their time in this contest will entertain with a program of their own liking.

The executive committee will meet at an early date to make up the program for the next several months.

Following are two of the series of talks which won Lutheran church Brotherhood's Contest of the Ages for those members over 60 years of age. The talks were made by John C. Goeller and W. E. Crist.

Mr. Goeller's story is first, followed by Mr. Crist's.

"On the day in October that President McKinley was buried, I left St. Louis about 7 a. m., for Windsor, Mo. The train stopped at Portland, Mo., about 1:30 p. m., allowing passengers 20 minutes for dinner. I, one of the last to the table, and another gentleman were last to get through. We hurried to pay the landlady, he stated the train would not start away until all the passengers were back on the train. On our way down to the depot we noticed the train going west but supposed it would back in on another track.

"We asked the railroad agent if the train was coming back, he said yes, tomorrow, about this time." He informed us that a fast train was going west about midnight but only stopped at McKane, Mo., which was 10 miles farther west. There were no automobiles at that time so we concluded to walk the 10 miles along the railroad track, which was very tiresome. We reached McKane after sundown, hungry, thirsty and tired. We ate a lunch then went to the depot to learn about the fast train.

The agent said that the conductor would have orders to take us on since the railroad company considered their duty to see that all passengers were on the train. As I said before, I was very, very tired from the 10 miles walk so I asked permission of the railroad agent to lie on a bench in the depot for a rest. He agreed to awaken me in time for the fast train.

"After awhile he awakened me. He was standing by me with his lantern. I asked him if the train was due, he said no but that you are snoring so loud I cannot hear my telegraph instruments.

"About 4 a. m., that night the train stopped at Windsor the town I started for. It was very dark. On my way up the street the town marshal stopped me. He asked me if I got off that fast train and why. He thought the train had been stopped by bandits as the fast train did not stop there once in a year. The marshal escorted me to the little hotel, had me registered and showed me to a room.

"A trip later, was made into Oklahoma. I hired a driver with two broncho ponies and buggy to drive me from one farmer to another in search of broom-corn. We were about 50 miles away from town and would stay over night with the farmers. I remember stopping with a farmer, Bishop, who lived in a house with one room only. It contained two beds, table, stove and few chairs. The wooden bedsteads were sided with boards from tick down to floor. This space contained wheat serving as a grainery. About 9 a. m., Mr. Bishop said whenever we were ready we can go to bed in the one on the corner. There were five of us, Mr. and Mrs. Bishop, their son, about 20 years of age, my driver and myself.

"I took off collar and tie and loosened my shoes but as Mrs. Bishop was still in the room did not go any farther. Mr. Bishop, seeing that I was backward told his wife that they better go outside and look after the chickens. While they were out the driver and myself rushed into bed. The son slept on the floor, Mr. and Mrs. Bishop in the other bed.

"At day break next morning the family was up and Mrs. Bishop was cooking breakfast near our bed. The sun began shining brightly and looked like breakfast would soon be ready and we were still in bed. Mrs. Bishop was setting the table near our bed and I was too bashful to get out and dress before the woman. Finally she went out of the room and we rushed into our clothes happy once more.

"A few nights later we asked to stay all night at Mr. Wood's in Oklahoma. They lived in a dugout, 10 in the family. The room was divided by a calico curtain. Two beds on one side just about two feet between them, Mr. and Mrs. Wood dressed for bed at the same time we did. I was so very tired and part of my bashfulness left me and I did not hesitate so much to get ready for bed at the same time Mr. and Mrs. Wood did.

"Mr. Wood said 'I suppose this Ohio man is used to Oklahoma fleas.' I said I was used to most anything by this time. I soon fell asleep and after a while felt things crawling and biting, causing me to scratch and scratch nearly all night. My body next day looked like measles. I walked out doors next morning, felt something on my neck and wrist, caught them, and they were bed bugs.

"I learned that Mr. Wood had part of his children sleep in the grainery that night so we could have a bed. Next night we came to Foster's store. There were Indians everywhere around there. We told the storekeeper we were looking for broom-corn and was glad to keep us at his home over night as he wanted his customers to sell their crop to us. Indians were camped in tents within 50 feet of the house. The storekeeper informed us that he found the Indians honest, that they would not even take an empty box without asking for it.

"The food sometimes would be quite different here. Boiled cabbage for breakfast, at noon pie with raw sweet potatoes, mixed with canned gooseberries.

"In 1895 or about 36 years ago, while driving south near the Colorado line, I noticed two women dragging a sack along on the prairie and picking up something and putting it into the sack. I asked my driver what those women were doing. He said, 'picking up chips,' as there are no trees anywhere out there I could not understand how they could find any chips. So I asked him what kind of chips they use for fuel instead of coal in the stove. Sure enough that evening, we stopped at a store keeper's house for meals and lodging. I saw the lady of the house putting chips into the stove while cooking supper. They make a great heat. Owing to the climate the chips dry quickly and farmers in the fall will gather wagon loads of cow chips and store in stacks, six or eight feet high for their winter fuel. Coal often sells at $10 to $15 per ton and the farmer has to drive 40 to 70 miles to the railroad station to buy it. Cow chips were something new to me but old for the western people."

It might be of interest to the people of Circleville to give at least a few of the names of firms and others who were in business in and near Circleville from 1861 to 1871.

J. P. and Edward Smith were in the broom corn business. They at first cultivated about 200 acres. The business grew until they had as much as 1,100 acres. They were known far and wide as the largest growers of broom corn in the United States.

In the year 1864 they paid to the Government a tax of $42,000 as the income from their business. During the harvest season they employed about 300 men, women and children.

W. E. Deleplane operated a grain business at the corner of Main and Canal streets beginning in 1861 and at that time had the largest grain business in our city.

W. C. Schwarz established a blacksmith shop in the building at the corner of Franklin and Pickaway streets. Before this was used as a blacksmith shop it was used as a place of worship by a branch of Methodists who called themselves Mutual Rights Methodist Episcopal church.

In 1866 an addition was built where the blacksmith shop of Mr. Good is located.

W. C. Schwarz and Son manufactured plows turning out more than 200 plows for a number of years.

The brick building on the south side of W. High-st which was built by Samuel H. Ruggles used as a Pork Packing plant.

The average number of hogs slaughtered varied from 10,000 to 15,000.

The company employed from 60 to 75 people.

The pork packing business on the north side was operated by John Groce and later became John Groce & Son.

In 1870 a large three story frame building was standing on the ground on which the two story brick building is standing at this time.

Groce & Son decided to repair this building. A heavy rain washed out the supports of the frame building and the whole building fell into ruins. This happened at the noon hour and not a man was killed or injured.

Situated on the east side of the Canal near the river was the flour mill operated by Noah Gregg. This mill was operated by water from the canal.

William Bauder for many years at the corner of Court and Watt-sts. was engaged in the manufacture of buggies and carriages. The annual output was from 250 to 300.

Other manufacturers in this line was Erobeck and Denman and James Duffy.

For quite a number of years, Philip Glick was in the brewery business on Court-st near Hargus creek. This ground is now occupied by Edward Helwagen and the Shell Oil Co.

In 1868 the brewery was sold to Krimmel and Hoover who operated it for a number of years.

George and William Roth purchased the Tannery on the west side of the canal of Jackson and Metzger for $10,000.

Rother Brothers tanned from 75 to 100 hides a week. The greater part of their output was used in the manufacture of harness.

In the early days of our city there were quite a number of shoe shops. One of the largest was operated by Robert Hall, who employed more than 20 helpers.

The oldest hardware dealer was Cyrus Benford who later admitted his son, B. F. Benford, as a partner in 1870.

George Myers was in the furniture business on W. Main-st, in the location of Stevenson's Furniture store at this time.

George Van Houten was in the shoe business in 1864 in the room now occupied by Fellers and Groce.

Charles Fismar, in the early days made shoes in the building occupied by Frank Barnhill as a dry cleaning place at this time.

John Miller was in the hat business and took his son, W. W. Miller as a partner in 1866.

This business still carries the name of J. Miller & Son and is operated at the same place, on W. Main-st, by A. E. Fissell.

The following men served as Mayors of our city from 1861 to 1873:

Jason Case from 1861 to 1867; John Walke, from 1867 to 1869; John N. Brunner from 1869 to 1873.

The city building, on the corner of Court and Franklin was built in 1861.

This building fronting on Court-st is 38 feet and 75 feet on Franklin-st.

William Doan made the plans for this building and superintended the construction.

We at this time or rather a little later had two fire departments. One was known as the Red and the other as the Blue Jackets.

The city had two pumping machines and depended on the cisterns and the canal for their water supply in case of fire.

The two fire companies went down to the canal either at Mound or Main-sts for practice about two Saturday nights of each month during the summer season to see which company could throw water the greatest distance.

The Pickaway House known as the Boggs hotel today, in the early days, was the leading hotel. It was the stopping place for all stage coaches which ran on the line between Columbus and Portsmouth.

On Oct. 10, 1863, the Pickaway County Bank was reorganized as the First National Bank of Circleville under the national banking laws. The capital was increased from $200,000 to $260,000.

The original board of directors were Noah S. Gregg, Samuel Rodgers, Samuel H. Ruggles, James E. Rice, Hanson Rock and Dr. Marcus Brown. Dr. Marcus Brown was elected president.

In 1866 a small broom making shop was started by M. G. Goeller, father of our well-known friend, J. C. Goeller.

Employment was given to three men at this time. The weekly output was about 25 dozen brooms.

In 1863 the foundry later known as the Scioto Machine Works, which was operated by W. W. Bierce was sold to Haswell Wright and Company, who continued the foundry business and also a house furnishing store of which an important feature was the tinshop, located on the lot where Moore shoe store is at this time.

A part of this building was two stories about 75 ft. deep and one story was 105 feet long, a total length of the building 180 feet.

J. H. Bennett established the ice business in 1862. All the ice was taken from the canal. Mr. Bennett at that time had also a lumber yard located on the land occupied by the Norfolk & Western freight depot and stock yards.

W and S. Jacob and son occupied the building on the corner of Main and Court-sts in 1865. Samuel Rindsfoos was in their employ and admitted to partnership in the firm in 1867.

The largest drug store was known as George H. Fickard & Co., located on W. Main-st, where the present Fickard & Son store is now.

Maack Parrett conducts the oldest clothing store in our city. It was founded in 1868 by Frank Brown.

C. R. Goldfrederick established the grocery business in the building on the corner of Pickaway and Mound-sts in 1862. The business was taken over by his son, Herman, in 1900.

Aker King was in the undertaking business in 1863 and was the leading undertaker for a number of years.

He occupied a small frame building where Frank Howard has his barber shop.

The monument business was established by James Harsna in 1862 located on the same ground as the building on which the Anderson building stands on E. Main-st.

Forest cemetery which is considered one of the most beautiful grounds in the state consisted of 51 acres was bought of Agnes McCrea.

This cemetery was dedicated by Rev. Joel Swartz, pastor of Evangelical Lutheran church, of our city.

The first body laid to rest was William Darst.

One of the most costly monuments erected is that of Col. John Cradelbaugh, a life-size statue of Christ.

D. Pierce, the veteran merchant who died a number of years past, had his goods hauled by wagon from the east. One wagon had 9,600 pounds of merchandise. It was a large Conestoga wagon with 4-inch tires. Six horses, bells on each horse driven by a single line and driver rode the off horse and when the wagon was backed up to the pavement in front of the store the team reached across the street.

One of the well-known firms of our city, Doddridge & Co., shipped to Cleveland, 31 barrels of dried apples for which they received 37 cents per barrel.

In the early days of Circleville, you could buy beef at 3 cents per pound, corn at 12 1-2 cents, fat hogs at 2 1-2 cents, chickens at 75 cents per dozen, turkeys at 25 cents each. Some made blue jeans at 50 cents per yard and home-made linen at 30 cents.

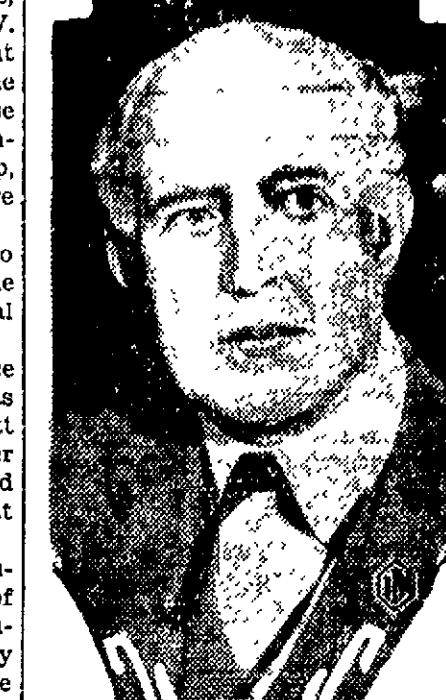

Wages were low. Good mechanics were paid from $1.00 to $1.25 per day for 10 hours. Common labor from 50 to 65 cents per day.

Farm hands at $8 per month, did not stop at 10 hours for a day's work.

You will agree with me that many changes have taken place in the past 60 or 70 years.

Docs who deplore kissing evidently would take the infection out of effection.

Probably the most prominent attorney now practicing in Reno is George A. Bartlett (above), former District Court Judge of Washington County, Nev. He has rendered decisions on divorces for twelve years and recently expressed his views on divorce in a book entitled "Men, Women and Conflict." Now he acts as an attorney.

TRAIN, TRUCK CRASH, 1 DEAD

Crossing Near Toledo Scene; Trainmen Hurt by Burns From Gasoline Truck

TOLEDO, O., May 8.—One man was killed and two others were seriously burned today when a New York Central passenger train crashed into a gasoline tank at the Richardson crossing, five miles west of here.

The dead man is Melvin McCormick, 23, a truck driver for the Hickok Oil Refining Co., Toledo. He died while enroute to a Toledo hospital.

The injured were Edward Ingold, engineer of the train, Toledo, and J. E. Mann, fireman on the train, also of Toledo. Both were removed to Toledo hospital where their condition was reported as critical.

Both Mann and Ingold were suffering from severe burns about the head and body and early examination failed to reveal any broken bones.

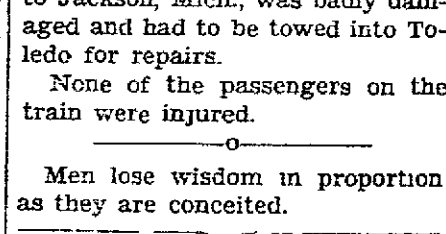

The two trainmen jumped from the locomotive cab when the train crashed into the truck after setting the brakes. Both were enveloped in the flames from the ignited gasoline tank on the truck.

McCormick, unable to free himself from the wreckage of the truck was fatally burned before aid could reach him. The truck was completely demolished and burned.

The train enroute from Toledo to Jackson, Mich., was badly damaged and had to be towed into Toledo for repairs.

None of the passengers on the train were injured.

A story is told of a man at a dinner party. He was middle-aged and rather dull. The lady seated next to him thought him an awful bore, but to make conversation she said, "Tell me—would you rather be in love with a beautiful lady or have a beautiful lady in love with you?" The man thought a moment, heaved a sigh and said, "Oh, I think I would rather be a canary bird."

A successful man does not evade issues, and neither does a successful business.

DOES A MAN'S HAIR GROW AFTER DEATH?

Scientists differ on this subject, but the weight of authority favors the view that the hair and whiskers do not grow after a person is dead. Apparent growth of the hair after death is explained by the shrinkage of the soft tissues around each hair.

FELT LIKE GIVING UP... NOW WELL

Charles C. Demmin, 3606 Decourcy-av., Latonia, Ky., now adds his praise to MALVA, the wonderful new family medicine.

"I have been in the grocery business all my life, and like other busy people, neglected my health. Eight years ago, I found that I had fallen into a bad condition of stomach, kidney and bladder trouble, and felt like giving up. Between then and now I have tried many remedies. I learned about MALVA and tried it. I have taken only a brief treatment of MALVA, and can truthfully say that my ailments have disappeared and he has taken on a new interest to me."

Why not try a bottle—today?

The Thrill Cult
IN a few weeks the public will find another incentive for buying Monday's newspapers in the lists of week-end traffic deaths and drawings at bathing resorts. That they will reach appalling numbers this year is inevitable. The age of miracles is not this age.

Six months hence, the nation, looking sadly and regretfully back upon thousands of preventable accidents, many of them fatal, will again be repeating the same old story, "It might have been." How often it will be said between spring and autumn, "If only . . . and if only . . ."

Remembering the death toll of former years, there are many motorists and bathers who are now vowing to risk neither life nor property during the approaching motoring and swimming season. Some will keep that vow, others will break it, perhaps with tragic consequences.

Most traffic accidents and drownings are inexcusable. Usually they can be attributed to recklessness or carelessness. Inherently a reckless race, the American people prize a pastime for its hazards. If it doesn't involve a chance, they are not intrigued. This characteristic has been manifested in war and in peace.

"Safety first" must come from within the individual. If he thirsts for thrills, danger signals are accepted as a dare. So let providence protect the thrill hunter and beach guards, crossing signals and highway warnings protect the cautious.

Delusion
ROSE by another name, would smell as sweet, but give it another name and nobody will know of what you speak. To answer that poetical interrogation "what's in a name?" there is more than is generally conceded. The American people rightfully inherited a thorough aversion bordering on contempt for the bureaucracy. The European was pictured as the pitiful victim of entangling, bureaucratic red tape. Every bureau of the European nation represents for American on-lookers just so much more government intermeddling in private affairs at private expense. And every American taxpayer thanked his lucky stars there was no bureau in the United States.

But all this while this country was just about as bureaucratic as any European country. By giving the bureau the name of department congress and the state legislatures completely deceived the public. A synonym may cover a multitude of sins and delude a whole nation.

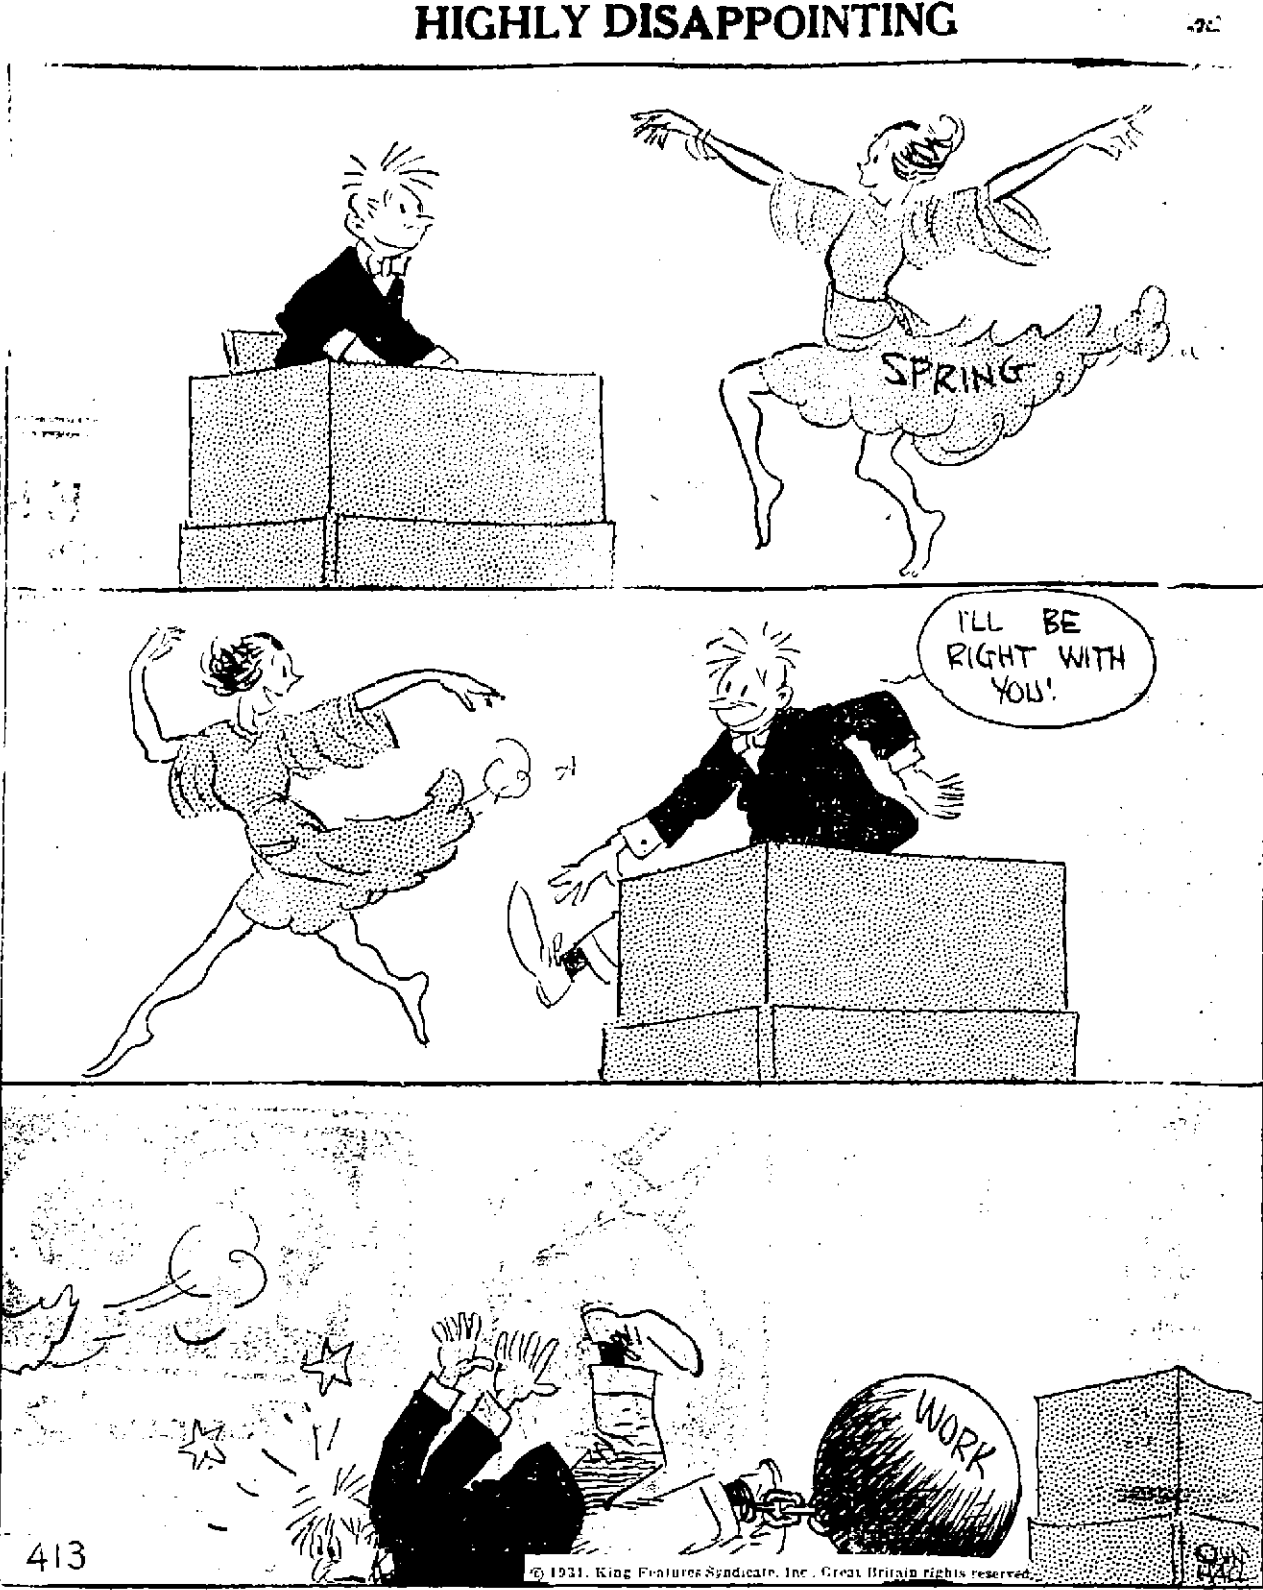

Self Interest
THE most fascinating subject of conversation to the average man is—himself. He likes to meditate upon himself about himself, and he talked about favorably. Which is quite natural, considering the fact that so far as he is concerned, he is the most important creature on earth.

A man's job, his family, his health, his achievement of fortune, his life, are the most interesting and vital things in the universe to him. Anyone who can offer light and reading on these paramount issues is a public benefactor. He gets a hearing or a reading.

No wonder the average American is a confirmed newspaper reader. The honest and clean journal of events is an open book revealing the heart and mind of the race. It deals in human interest. It sketches the average man in his universal characteristics. It satisfies his hunger to know about himself.

Advertising Helps Credit
THERE is one way by which a business man's credit is improved, and that is by a policy of consistent advertising. Bank men believe in advertising for they know it pays. Their feeling, therefore, is that when a merchant who is a good advertiser applies for a loan, that a reasonable amount of goods, bought by him on credit, is likely to be turned over quickly and promptly paid for.

Discriminating buyers of every class know they can get fresh goods from the store that advertises. The merchant who advertises seldom has shop-worn goods.

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST"

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER XXXIX.

"MAYBE yes, maybe no," Reynolds said in reply to the question merely looked. "He tells a good story. Admitted right away, that he's Wilkes Deland. Said the show business is shot—has been for a year. That's true; I've a sliver on the stage. He'd played butler parts once or twice, remember him in 'Pirate Gold'?" And when he found himself out of luck decided to tide over by butlering till things opened up.

"The last family he was with—this is only his second try and he's got a part cinched for October—went to Europe. So the book the references they wrote out for him all nice and pretty and came up here for the Summer. And there you are."

"Sounds pat," Walter admitted. "Anyway he's more valuable to us here than looked up."

"Right you are, son. And now—"

A stoop-shouldered, wiry little man thrust a screwed-up face against the open window and hissed sharply. Walter called, "What is it, Terrence?"

"I'm wishin' a minute with you, son."

"Come in, Terrence. Go around front and I'll let you in."

Damaging Evidence

The little gardener entered with an air of great mystery and held out an object that glowed faintly. "I do be findin' this in the garden, Mr. Vance, sir. 'Twas buried deep under the bit of grass forrest the summer house on the west side of the door. You'll be wantin' it, I'm thinkin'."

They crowded about to see what lay in Walter's hand. A flat oblong of dull gold it was, cut through the center with the letters "T. F."

Bim had seen it dozens of times. It was Ted Frost's missing lighter. Walter kept reasoning with Bim, telling him that there was nothing about the lighter to connect it with the murder. The gold explain away certain discrepancies between their movements on the night the Baroness von Wiese was murdered and their previous story of those movements.

"They both have lied themselves black in the face, Bim. That's dangerous right now. And they're too mixed up in the case by far." The officer and the girl were alone in the little drawing room. Reynolds having gone up the hill to fetch Sarah, the Frost maid, for questioning. Bim walked about the room, half crying, protesting that the police were jumping at conclusions.

"They've both lied themselves black in the face, Bim."

"I didn't mean it, Bim. Only you're working for or against us. It won't do."

She grew calmer and, sitting down at his side, prepared to face this new development. "It's so circumstantial, Wally. I can't make it seem right."

"It isn't just this. We've unearthed other things not so circumstantial."

"Oh? Yes, well . . ."

Of course she had no way of knowing what the police had accomplished. She could only hope that her old friends would not be implicated. "There are so many others to be considered, Wally dear. Not just Ted and Mary."

"We're considering the others." He laid his hand on hers in the first gesture of friendliness he had shown for days. "Don't take it so close to heart, honey."

She felt comforted a little and when Reynolds arrived with Sarah in tow smiled at the colored maid's air of importance. Sarah seated herself upon the extreme edge of a chair and favored them with a wide, white grin.

Frequent Quarrels

"Sarah," Reynolds began, "We hear that Mr. Frost keeps late hours and his wife doesn't like it. Ever hear them quarreling?"

"Yas suh, sure does." Sarah rolled her eyes and broadened her grin a trifle. "Sure does scarp, them folks. Miss Mahy, she always studyin' to keep Mr. Ted in nights but she can't do it. No good nohow."

"They been having trouble lately? The last few days?" The woman's face set in a large, effort of thinking. "Want say about that suh. No, I never talk they been right hum' last few days 'er sense they run father night."

"What night did they row, Sarah? Think now, this is Friday."

"Reckon we had cream chicken left over from Sunday and it musta been Monday. Yas suh, that's when it was, Monday."

A Different Story

The white grin returned and they listened to a rambling story of Sarah's slumbers being interrupted by the cat Peter which, it seemed, shared her room. She arose to put Peter on the extension roof below her window between three and four o'clock—she was positive about this because she had an alarm clock beside her bed—and saw Ted and Mary Frost get out of their car and heard them come in.

Ted began the row, Sarah averred, when he cried in a loud, angry voice "What the deuce do you mean by gadding about all night?" And Mary's voice was quite angry and almost as loud as she declared that she possessed the same right to gad about that he did and meant to make use of that right. They had quarreled bitterly, flinging reproaches and recriminations at each other and finally Mary had gone to her room and Ted had gone to his, each banging a door.

No, they had had no luncheon before retiring, they were much too angry to think of eating. And yes, Mary went out almost as much as Ted did, but only on nights when he was gone. It was the principal thing that caused trouble in the household—Mary's nocturnal absences.

New Christian Science Publishing House

Boston, Mass.—Continued growth of the activities of The Christian Science Publishing Society has necessitated expanded facilities. To meet this condition The Christian Science Board of Directors of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, will erect, as soon as plans and arrangements are completed, a new Publishing House.

Here provision will be made for the needs of The Christian Science Monitor, The Christian Science Journal, The Christian Science Sentinel and all other literature published by the Society.

The new building, which will cost in the neighborhood of $3,000,000, will occupy approximately 58,000 square feet of ground bounded by Massachusetts Avenue, Norway, Falmouth and Clearway Streets, Back Bay. Operations are to be hastened in accord with the public and private building program which Mayor James M. Curley of Boston has been urging in conjunction with President Hoover's recommendations for relief of unemployment.

The structure will have a varying height. The Massachusetts Avenue end of the building, which will be used for offices, will be nine stories in height, while that part which is opposite The Mother Church edifice will be three and four stories in height and in scale with this edifice.

The publishing building will be related in architectural style to The Mother Church, and its design has been influenced by the fact that in the future it probably will become one of a group of buildings which will surround and form a fitting architectural setting for the Church. It will be an all-stone building of the Italian Renaissance type, the lower story to be of granite and the upper stories of limestone.

Special attention will be given to the installation of modern heating and ventilating devices. The central plant will be housed in a building adapted to it, with an ornamental tower inclosing the stack, the tower to be of brick and stone conforming with the beauty and symmetry of the main building.

The building now occupied by The Christian Science Publishing Society, completed in 1908, will be used for the administration offices of The Mother Church.

The architect is Chester Lindsay Churchill, and with him is associated Lockwood-Greene Engineers, Inc., of Boston, which will have charge of the plant layout.

His Suit Went
A certain Washington woman employs a negro high school student after hours at odd jobs. The lad is industrious and the kindly lady often seeks to favor him, even to giving him the cast-off clothing of her husband. Now it happens that the husband has never been officially received at the White House, so what was the good woman's astonishment when her colored helper, after finishing a cleaning job, donned his latest acquisition from her husband, explaining: "Yes ma'm, I've got to go to the White House. This is the day President Hoover receives the honor students of my class, and I'm one of them." Path-finder.

comparatively low in cost but they are usually much richer in vitamins than muscle meats, she says, and in addition provide an interesting variation in the diet.

"So much has been said recently about liver that the demand for liver has skyrocketed the price until it is now one of the most expensive meats on the market,"

Doctor Stiebeling said. "Beef liver and hog liver are rich in vitamins and minerals and are sold anywhere from 5 to 25 cents a pound, depending chiefly on locality. Hog liver is better known in the South and is usually cheap-

"Like all pork products the hog liver must be well cooked. Recent experiments with it at the mand, is not sold everywhere, but where it can be bought it ranges in price from 12 1/2 to 20 cents a pound. Calf hearts are more expensive but are not so high as calf liver. Beef heart is good when stuffed with savory dressing and baked. Its flavor is excellent.

Doctor Stiebeling emphasizes that liver is often cooked too long and at too high a temperature.

She suggests steaming or broiling

it for young children. Older children may have sandwiches filled with chopped cooked liver, mixed with celery or a little lemon juice and seasoned with salt. She advocates liver in small amounts three or four times a month for children and perhaps twice for adults.

A FAMILY OF FIVE

Including Father, Mother and three children should buy every week:

Bread 12-16 pounds.

Flour, 1-2 pounds.

Cereal, 4-6 pounds.

Whole fresh milk, 23-28 quarts.

Or canned unsweetened milk 23-

28, tall cans.

Potatoes, 15-20 pounds.

Dried beans, peas, peanut butter,

15-20 pounds.

Tomatoes, fresh or canned, or citrus fruit 6 pounds.

Other vegetables (including some of green or yellow color) and inexpensive fruit, 15-18 pounds.

Fats, such as bacon, butter, lard,

margarine, salt pork, etc., 2 1/2

pounds.

Sugar and molasses, 3 pounds.

Lean meat, fish, cheese, eggs

(8 eggs approximately 1 pound) 5-

7 pound.

Eggs (for children) 8 eggs.

Coffee, 1 pound.

Tea, 1-4 pound.

MENU FOR ONE DAY

Breakfast

Orange juice, cooked cereal, top milk, coffee or milk.

Dinner

Liver and rice loaf, baked potatoes, beets, muffins, tea.

Supper

Bean soup, toast, prune short-cake, milk for all.

RECIPES

Liver and Rice Loaf

1-2 cup rice.

4 cups boiling water.

1 pound sliced liver.

2 tablespoons butter or other fat.

1 small onion, chopped fine.

1-4 cup fresh celery leaves.

1 tablespoon chopped parsley.

2 tablespoons flour.

1 cup canned tomatoes.

Cook the rice until tender in boiling water and do not drain; but let the rice absorb the water so as to form a sticky mass which will act as a binder for the loaf.

Wipe the liver with a damp cloth and remove the skin. Sprinkle the liver with salt and flour, and cook in the butter or other fat in a skillet for about 3 minutes.

Remove the liver and grind or chop it very fine. Cook the onion, celery, and parsley in the drippings for a few minutes, add the flour and tomato, and stir briskly until thickened. Then mix all the ingredients until thoroughly blended, form into a loaf with the hands on parchment paper on a rack in an open roasting pan, and bake for about 30 minutes in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.).

KIDNEY STEW

1 beef kidney.

1 cup diced potato.

1 small onion, sliced.

3-4 teaspoon salt.

1 tablespoon flour.

1 tablespoon melted butter or other fat.

1 egg yolk.

Chopped parsley.

Few drops tabasco sauce.

1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Wash the kidney well, and remove most of the fat. Cover with cold water, heat slowly to the boiling point, discard the water, and repeat the process until there is no strong odor and no scum on the water. Then add about 1 quart of fresh water and simmer the kidney until tender. Remove the kidney and cut into small pieces. Reserve the broth and cook the potato and onion in it. Then add the kidney and the salt. Thicken with the blended flour and fat, and cook for a few minutes longer.

Stir some of the stew into the beaten egg yolk, mix all together and add the parsley, tabasco sauce, and lemon juice. The heat of the stew will cook the egg sufficiently. Serve at once.

STUFFED BEEF HEART

1 beef heart.

2 tablespoons bacon fat or other drippings.

1 small onion, chopped.

1-2 green pepper, chopped.

3 cups bread crumbs.

1-2 teaspoon salt.

1 cup chopped celery.

Wash the heart and remove the gristle and veins. Make a slit in the side and fill with stuffings made as follows. Melt the fat, cook the onion and green pepper

for a few minutes, add the bread crumbs, salt, and celery, and stir until well mixed.

Sprinkle the heart inside and out with salt and pepper, fill with the hot stuffing, and sew up the slit.

Seal the heart in hot fat, place in a baking dish, add 1-2 cup of hot water, cover and cook until tender, in a very moderate oven

(300F). A beef heart will require about 2 hours. Remove the heart and add flour to the drippings and enough water to make a thin gravy. Serve surrounded by the gravy.

Indian Strength Will Be Tested

By LES CONKLIN
NEW YORK, May 8.—The second cycle of the American League race begins this afternoon with the initial invasion of the west by the circuit's four eastern clubs.

It will be "Joe McCarthy Day," at Comiskey Park, Chicago, where the former pilot of the Cubs will make his bow as manager of the New York Yankees. The popular Irishman will be given a warm greeting by thousands of admirers from the north side of the city.

Philadelphia's champion Athletics, now hitting on all nine cylinders after a poor start, should continue their winning ways at the expense of the tail-end St. Louis Browns. Washington, crippled by the loss of Joe Judge, veteran first baseman, faces the up-and-coming Detroit Tigers.

This first swing around the circuit ultimately will provide the first real test of the early season strength of the Cleveland Indians. Although the Indians were given a neat shellacking by the Browns yesterday, they have managed to stay a full game ahead of the Yankees, their nearest rival, by winning twelve out of nineteen starts against the weaker western clubs while the A's, Tanks and Senators were cutting each other's throats in the east.

In their first intersectional test the fast-stepping Indians have drawn a "breather" in the Boston Red Sox, who have been moving no faster than the stock ticker.

Starting next Tuesday, however, Cleveland will be called upon to ward off successive thrusts by Washington, Philadelphia and New York, and these three series will go far toward determining whether Cleveland is to be ranked as a real contender this year.

If Roger Peckinpaugh's men still retain the league lead after these three crucial series, the Indians will be conceded a golden opportunity of giving the Forest City its first pennant since 1920.

Intersectional engagements in National League will start tomorrow with the Chicago Cubs invading New York and Cincinnati playing Boston. Pittsburgh opens in Brooklyn Sunday while the St. Louis Cardinals, now dallying at Pittsburgh, will stage their first east-west conflict at Philadelphia on Monday.

The Giants seem to be the only eastern club capable of stopping the Cardinals, who flattened the Pirates again yesterday. The New York pitching has been consistently good, with Mitchell and Fitzsimmons each winning four straight games and Walker and Hubbell performing commendably. Vergez, the rookie, has filled the gap at third base acceptably and is leading the club at bat; and Terry and Ott, the club's big guns, on the attack, finally have started to hit.

DROPPED BALL DEFEAT CAUSE

Hinkle Errs on Bedore's Perfect Peg to Plate, Birds Lose To St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 8.—On the strength of baseball's rarity, the 1 to 0 game, St. Paul today held the firmest grip on first place in the American Association it has had this season.

The Saints shivered through 10 innings yesterday before they were able to get a run and beat the Columbus Red Birds. Meanwhile, the Louisville Colonels, their principal rivals, dropped a 6 to 5 game to Kansas City.

Catcher Hinkle dropped a throw at the plate with one out in the tenth and permitted Anderson, Saint center fielder and lead-off man, to score with the run needed to whip Columbus.

Hinkle let the ball slip out of his grasp after he had tagged the runner and Umpire Snyder reversed the decision.

Second Baseman Bedore's peg to cut off Anderson was almost perfect and but for the error the game probably would have continued several more innings.

Dick Wetherall, Columbus pitcher, gave 10 hits and Walter Betts, Saint finger, allowed eight.

The champion Colonels were nosed out right at the start in their game with Kansas City. The Blues scored three runs in the first inning and chased Hatter, Walsh and Williams before the game ended. Thomas was the winning hurler.

Pick, Kansas City left fielder, stole home after hitting a triple. Rain and cold stopped other games yesterday.

An inquirer wants to know why the standard piano has 88 notes. For one thing, they had to get in high notes in the national anthem.

Contentment is about eight parts laziness.

Theaters

AT THE CLIFTONA

In a characterization akin to his "Wolf of Wall Street," George Bancroft fists-thumps and thunders his way through the fast-action, dynamic-drama episodes of his newest picture "Scandal Sheet" which comes to the Cliftona Theatre on Friday.

In "The Wolf of Wall Street," the big bad bruiser of the talkie spaces was rendered dissolute by a scheming wife and her clandestine lover. Likewise, in "Scandal Sheet" Bancroft's love castles are reduced to a heart-wrecked shambles.

But there the analogy ends—for "Scandal Sheet" is different from any other play Bancroft has ever dominated with his virile vigor.

"Scandal Sheet" shows him as a ruthless managing editor of a tabloid newspaper, a killer of reputations, a slayer of ideals, a juggernaut who smothers all in his path, in the name of the great god News. His credo is "If it's news it gets printed, no matter whom it hurts."

AT THE GRAND

Outlaws, cattlemen and a woman combine efforts to tame one man in "Fair Warning," Fox movie tone outdoor romance adapted from Max Brand's thrilling story, "The Untamed," coming Friday to the Grand theatre.

George O'Brien portrays the leading role of "Whistlin' Dan Barry," remarkable for his uncanny influence over wild things and his ability to shoot straight.

Louise Huntington enacts the leading feminine role and, with O'Brien, furnishes the love interest. The supporting cast includes Mitchell Harris, Nat Pendleton, and George Brent.

The picture was directed by Alfred L. Werker, who made "Last of the Duanes" and Ernest L. Pascal made the adaptation and wrote the dialog.

BERG BEGINS COMEBACK TRIP

NEW YORK, May 8.—Jack "Kid" Berg, rated a few weeks ago as the star of stars, will start on the long comeback trail here to night. The English lightweight, recently knocked out by Tony Cannonieri, world's champion, will face Tony Herrera of Mexico, in the main bout at Madison Square Garden.

Berg was a 7 to 5 favorite. The bout is scheduled for ten rounds but Berg hoped his rushing battle would end it in less.

WALNUT-TWP. SCHOOL NOTES

The last day of school will be Thursday, May 14. There will be an all-day picnic. The menu is as follows:

Meat sandwiches, potato chips, cheese, pickles or olives, deviled eggs, baked beans and cake.

After this week there is just one more week of school. Some are glad, while others will miss the school in every way. The Seniors are probably the latter.

TAG THE CRIMSON

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—Over two hundred automobiles of Harvard students have been tagged by a special police detail conducting a campaign against violations of the automobile parking laws. The owners of each automobile tagged must visit police headquarters and confer with Chief of Police McBride. A warning is issued on the first offense but the violator is promised court action on a second tagging.

When we envy our superiors, we compliment them.

Strange Tales Of Daring Told To Racing Officials

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 7.—Turning a car over at 93 miles an hour just for the thrill of it, is the strangest of many strange recommendations received here by speedway officials from embryonic race drivers who want to compete in the International 500-mile race held at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway each May.

Taxi drivers, balloon pilots, chimney sweeps, parachute jumpers, wing walkers, window washers in skyscrapers, prosaic mechanics and clerks, crossroads corner benders—and other classifications too numerous to mention—are among those who hopefully write to speedway officials, asking that they be named as drivers of cars entered in the annual race here over the historic bricks of the Indianapolis course.

But this letter is one of the strangest ever received:

"I want to make application to enter a car in the 500-mile race. I have a driver who holds the record of 87 miles per hour between Pineville and Corbin. I think he can drive my car at a speed of 125 miles an hour on the Indianapolis track. He has driven a packard eight."

Then just to show the sheer daredevilry of this young man who would cast his future fortune in the maelstrom of speed over the Indianapolis bricks in competition with the star pilots of two continents, the letter continues:

"My driver has more nerve than anyone. He turned a car over while driving 93 miles an hour just for the thrill of it. The car was built for it though. Just do you think of a driver like that? Do you think he's all right?"

The name of the prospective entrant who hails from Kentucky is withheld for obvious reasons by the speedway officials, but the letter is so unusual it is being framed for hanging in racing's hall of fame on the walls of the speedway office.

"We receive many an usual letter," says T. E. "Pop" Myers, general manager of the Indianapolis track. "They all are written in innocent, good faith. Undoubtedly some interested youth who write would have a successful career in speed, if they were given an opportunity. But no one I know will give a novice an opportunity to wreck $10,000 worth of racing automobile just to prove that a letter writer is as good as his word."

"Usually the successful drivers at Indianapolis come from many miles of competitive apprenticeship on dirt tracks. Never has there been a racing novice win—or even start—at Indianapolis. Frank Lockhart, George Sounders and Louis Meyers are pilots who won at Indianapolis their first time in competition here—but all of them had made successful showing on the minor loops of racing before coming to the major league of speed."

CONSERVATION NEWS of OHIO STATE

OHIO HAS BEE EXPERT
Apple blossom time is here. The honey bee is on the job. C. A. Reese, apiarist, for the state department of agriculture makes some interesting observations in regard to the product of this busy little worker. Professor Reese says:

"Honey, unlike many foods which decompose easily as a result of bacterial action, has a unique method of protecting itself from spoilage by literally drying the organisms to death. It has the peculiar and distinctive property of absorbing moisture from anything with which it comes in contact."

"A certain amount of moisture is necessary to maintain life in living organisms, so when bacteria comes in contact with honey and this vital amount of moisture is withdrawn, the organism dies."

FRUIT UNINJURED

There has been no frost damage to fruit in southern Ohio. None in northern Ohio, except to early blooming currants, a few cherries and occasional early peaches.

The cold weather is holding back the apple bloom. In southern Ohio only a few blossoms have opened, these being early blooming commercial varieties such as Staygreen, Delicious Grimes and Jonathans. This report comes from W. W.

Ellenwood, chief, division plant industry, state department of agriculture.

JUNIOR FAIR BOARD NAMED

Director Guthery, state department of agriculture, announces the names of the Buckeye boys and girls, appointed by him as members of the Ohio State Junior Fair Board. Each department of the State Junior Fair, August 31 to September 5, will be in charge of one of these members. Those named for this honor are:

Leahard Dailey, Bloomingdale, Boy's-A-H clubs.
Margaret Cram, Conneaut, Girl's-A-H clubs.
Richard Rhodes, Salem, Juvenile Granges.

Lowell Single, Greenfield, Future Farmers of America.
Robert Clark, Fredericktown, Vocational Agriculture.

Gertrude Hawke, Johnstown, Home Economics.
Evelyn Marshall, Columbus, Central School Shops.

Donald Geren, Columbus, City School Gardens.
Miles Reed, Zanesville, Boy Scouts of America.

Donald Pick, Kent, Farm Institute Posters.

NEW LAKE FOR SOUTHERN OHIO

Members of Rotary clubs, Chamber of Commercials, Izaak Walton League, Conservation League and League of Ohio Sportsmen from Oakhill, Wellston and Jackson were in Columbus last week. They called on Governor White, the Conservation Council and Director Guthery of the state department of agriculture. An invitation was extended a big fish fry to be held soon after May 11, near Jackson.

The sportsmen of Jackson-co have undertaken the construction of a lake at Rocky Run, near Jackson. Southern Ohio welcomes this new undertaking. This lake will afford an ideal place for the propagation of fish and for general outdoor entertainment. Preliminary work on this project is now under way. The fish fry is to be held in honor of the selection of the site of the proposed dam.

CONSERVATION PROGRAM IS OUTLINED

The Conservation Council and Director I. S. Guthery of the state department of agriculture met recently with officials and members of the program committees of the Izaak Walton League, League of Ohio Sportsmen, American Legion World War Veterans, and other conservation groups. A state-wide conservation program was outlined. This will include increased production of game and fish, training of conservation officials in their field duties, a state park system, cooperation with farm organizations, and sportsmen groups, a game refuge and vermin control program, selection of personnel and other important phases for conservation of natural resources.

The keynote of the program, presented by J. F. Atwood, chairman and Fred C. Stuck, secretary of the joint committees, called for a production, on a large scale, of game birds and animals and of game fish for restocking. Mr. Atwood is chairman of the program committee of the League of Ohio Sportsmen. Mr. Stuck is secretary of the Izaak Walton League in Ohio.

The council again met April 30 and gave this program further study. This is in harmony with, and has been developed in close cooperation with, the Division of Conservation. Delegates of conservation groups from many parts of Ohio were present.

One of the first projects will be a state-wide game and bird sanctuary system and the closing of spawning ground areas in certain lakes and streams. Plans are now under way for enlargement of several hatcheries and increased production of pheasants. This is a new game bird for southern and eastern Ohio. The rearing of raccoons and purchase of raccoons for restocking together with definite plans for the Roosevelt Game Preserve in Scioto-co were considered.

Refuges will be set aside at Indian Lake, and at Lake St. Mary's at once. Cross creek in Jefferson-co will be closed for one year to give the game fish an opportunity to propagate. Plans are now going forward in behalf of the game preserve in Jefferson-co.

Last year, over forty-eight thousand cars of fruits and vegetables were consumed in Ohio over and above the amount grown within the state itself.

This report was made to Director Guthery of the state department of agriculture by E. A. Flemming, chief, division of markets. Of the commodities considered in this report all of them can be profitably grown in Ohio, with the exception of citrus fruits. There is no over-production in this state.

Mr. Flemming's report is free. You will make good wages asking for your copy. Address him, Division of Markets, Department of Agriculture, Columbus, Ohio.

THAT far-seeing, careful-thinking people read the ads. They know the best is advertised.

It is a well known fact that stores that advertise handle the highest quality and the goods they sell give the greatest amount of satisfaction.

Careless acceptance of non-advertised goods on the part of buyers often causes them much grief. Retailers who sell advertised merchandise can easily testify to the ease with which they sell them.

They sell them easily because advertising has created the demand and the merchandise gives the customer satisfaction.

The only sure way for merchants to secure the best trade is by carrying quality merchandise and using plenty of newspaper space. Increased sales and profits are easily made by those merchants who stock up with advertised merchandise and then let the people know they have them.

It is the absolute reliability of advertised merchandise that makes them so satisfying to the public. ADVERTISED GOODS ARE BEST BY EVERY TEST.

TRICKS of MAGIC EXPLAINED by WILL L. LINDHORST

SE NOSE TO FIND CERTAIN PENNY AMONG SIX COINS

Place six pennies close together on a table, select one, pass it around to persons in the audience and have each person note the date on the penny. Then blindfold yourself and ask that the penny be placed in the group on the table. Immediately stoop over and touch the pennies with the tip of your nose and you will find that one coin feels warmer than the others. The warm coin, which has become so through being fingered by persons in the audience, is the selected penny. Copper retains heat better than other metals, and the nose being more sensitive than the fingers will easily detect the difference in the warmth of the coins.

Chevrolet

Has struck a popular new note in motor-car styling

Many factors have contributed to the remarkably widespread popularity of the new Chevrolet Six. Among these are smooth performance, low price, matchless economy, exceptional riding ease and driving comfort. But no feature has been more strikingly evident in the enthusiastic public reception of the car than its smart new style.

Interiors, too, are unusual in every way. The upholstery is carefully tailored. Seats are roomy, deeply cushioned and invitingly soft. And the interiors are tastefully appointed.

An important factor in Chevrolet's smart appearance is the de-luxe wire wheels with forty steel spokes and massive chrome-plated hub caps.

Fisher Body craftsmen, with their background of fine-car designing, have made this new Chevrolet an exceptionally attractive automobile. Study it from any angle and you find it extremely pleasing. Look at it from the front and you are impressed by the modish ensemble of deep radiator, large headlamps and arched hood—all gleaming in rich chromium plate. Viewed from the side, the long hood, low-slung body

This emblem—Body by Fisher—is a symbol of superior body craftsmanship—exclusive with Chevrolet in the low-price field.

In fact, the new Chevrolet Six is such a thoroughly fine-looking automobile that it has become a very popular choice with every type of buyer. You find it not only the smart family car, but the smart personal car as well—a worthy companion to the expensive automobiles of the two- and three-car household.

AIR SCHOOL

ATLANTA, Ga.—The nation's first "University of the Air" will begin operation here soon. Arrangements have virtually been completed for the inauguration of a complete college course, with diplomas and all, to be given by radio from the campus of Oglethorpe university here. Approval by the federal radio commission for the erection of the station, WJTL, paved the way for radio's first classroom bell to ring.

Prolific Inventor

According to a newspaper article, investigations of records in the Smithsonian institution show that Walter Hunt of Brooklyn, N. Y., one of the inventors of the sewing machine, invented the safety pin in the year 1854. Hunt was the inventor of the eye-pointed needle in the sewing machine and also of the lock stitch.

4-H Club Girls Compete For Educational Tour

WASHINGTON — A visit to the shrine of history in the United States during July, 1932, is the splendid award provided for four winners in the National 4-H Club Girls' Style Dress Revue to be held during the Tenth National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. It was announced today by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club work.

Any 4-H Club girl who is a bona fide clothing club member during 1931 is eligible to compete. In addition to the national prizes, winners in county and state contests will receive awards to encourage members engaged in clothing club projects. A silver oxidized and a bronze medal of honor will be awarded the county winner and near-county winner, respectively, in all counties of the United States staging a 4-H Style Revue in which there are ten (10) or more contestants.

The state winners selected in a state-wide 4-H Club Girls' Style Dress Revue will receive educational trips to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago next December and her granddaughter Miss Kathryn Kirk.

Entrants competing in the national contest may model in any one of the following classes: Cotton School Dress, Tailored Wool Dress, Semi-Tailored Silk Dress, or Informal Party Dress. Each contestant must make the clothing in which she will model and select the proper accessories.

The national winner of the contest will be awarded a solid gold medal of honor. The high scoring individual in each of the four divisions of the national contest will win a tour to the shrines of American history. Wrist watches will be awarded the second and third high scoring individuals in each of the divisions of the contest in Chicago.

Miss Martha P. Cramer of Washington C. H., Fayette-co., was the first prize winner in the Ohio state-wide 4-H Club Girls' Style Dress Revue last year and won a free trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.
